The Silver Hill Methodist Episcopal Church is a one-story frame hall-type church with vinyl siding and a simple rectangular plan located on the south side of Old Liberty Road. Built about 1875, it is near a mid-19th century cemetery and the Wayman A.M.E. Church (F-8-123), an 1868 building. Both churches are good examples of small rural African-American churches of the third and fourth quarter of the 19th century in their functional plan and simple materials with no decorations.

7.1 Description

The Silver Hill Methodist Episcopal Church is a one-story frame church with a rectangular plan and gable roof built about 1875 on the south side of Old Liberty Road near Mt. Pleasant, Maryland. The principal elevation faces east. The church is covered with vinyl siding. A stone foundation is exposed by the sloping site on the north and west elevations. The east elevation has a single bay with a four-panel door and a narrow transom. Above the door is a single light bulb fixture. The north and south elevations have three window bays with 1/1 wood sash. The windows are clear glazed. The standing seam metal roof is pierced by a single concrete block flue in the south slope near the center of the south elevation. An additional stovepipe or furnace vent extends from the south wall near the southeast corner. A cellar entrance with a single wood door is located on the north elevation.

West and south of the Silver Hill Methodist Episcopal Church is a cemetery with burials dating from about the 1860's. A second church, Wayman A.M.E. Church (F-8-123) is located about 30 yards south of the Silver Hill Church on a separate parcel.

8.1 Significance

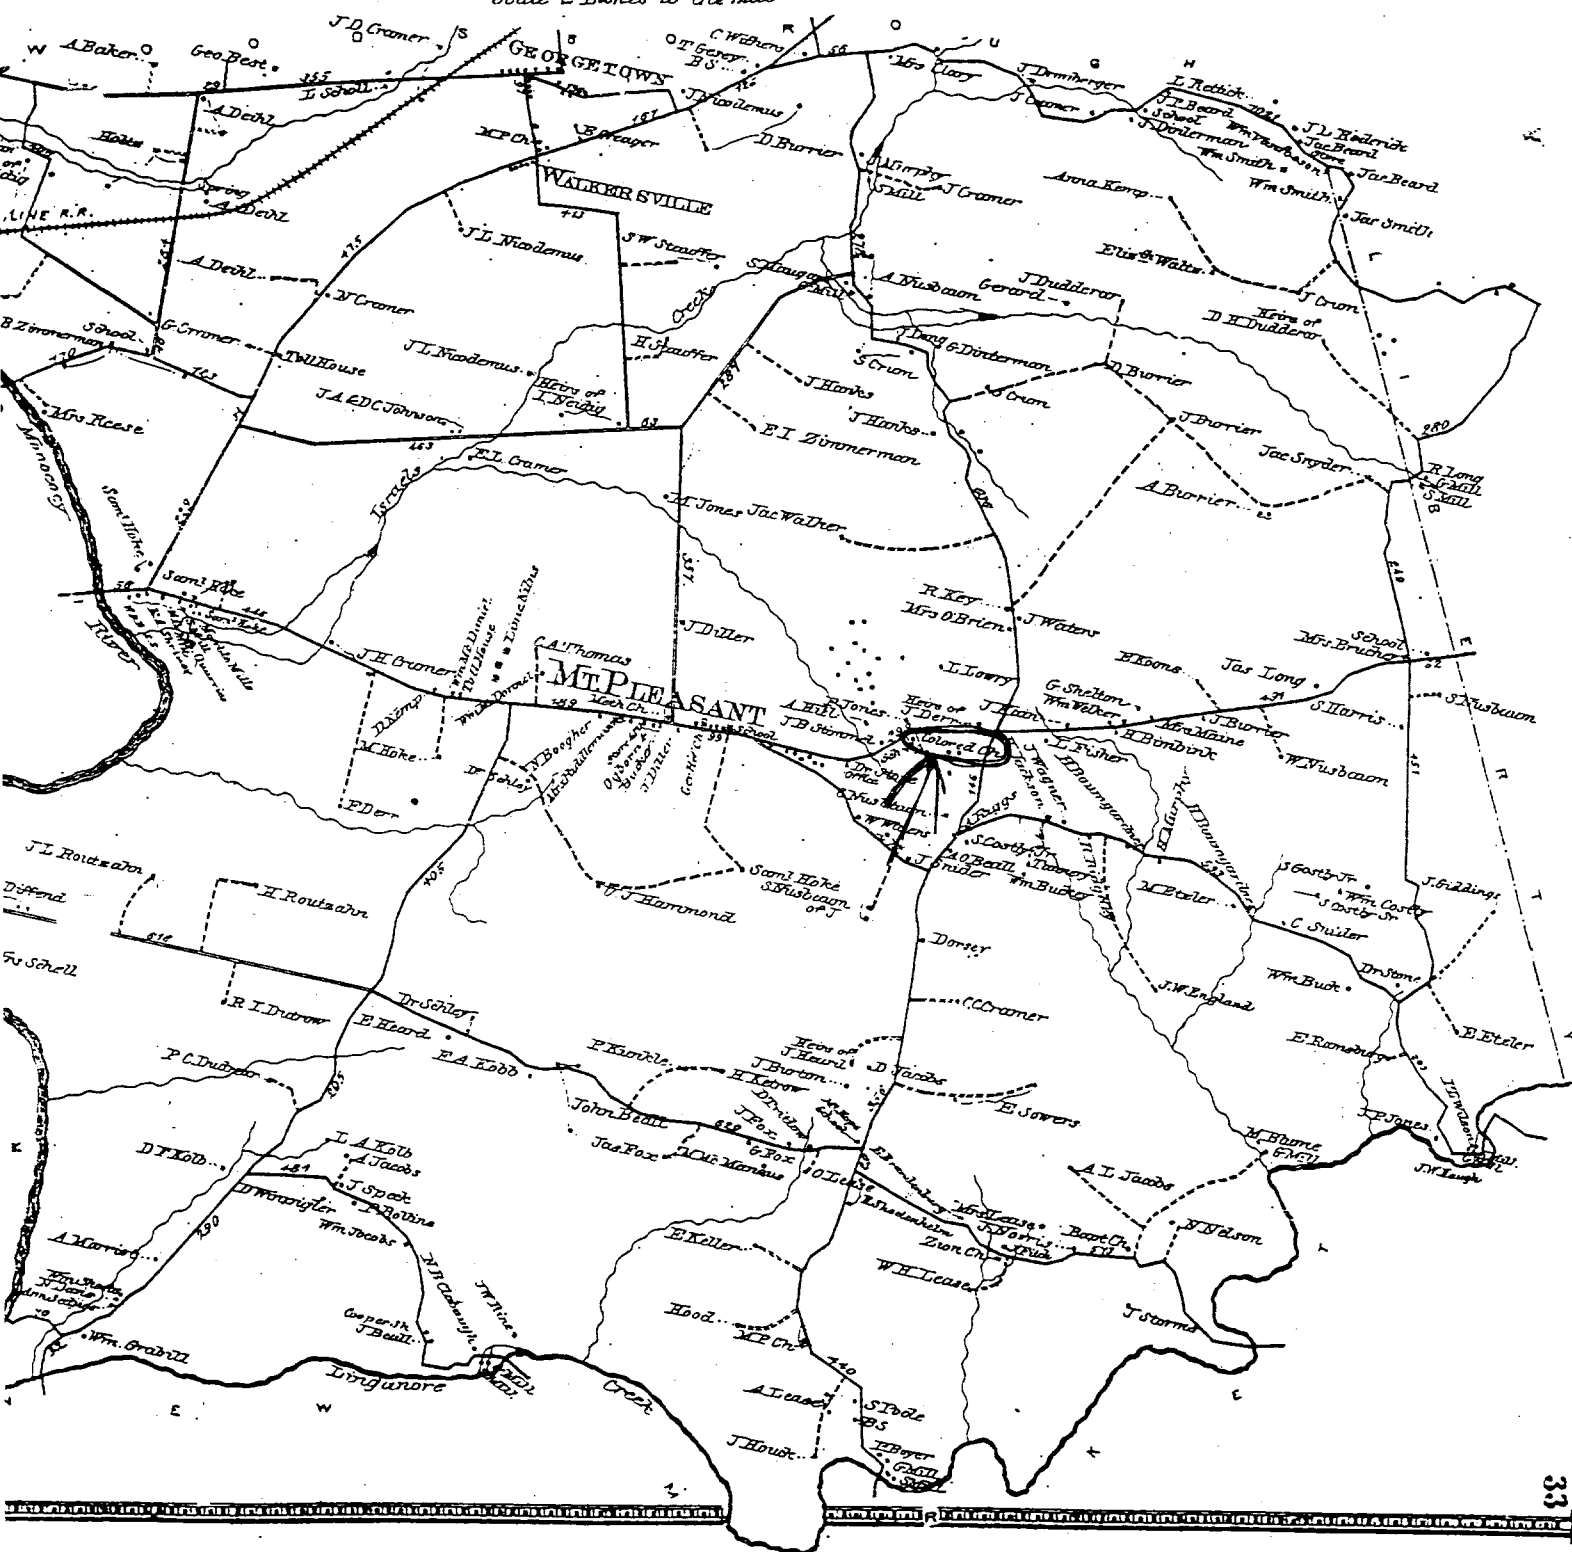

The Silver Hill Methodist Episcopal Church is a good example of a rural African-American church of the last quarter of the 19th century. The congregations of such churches tended to be small, consisting of freed slaves from the large plantations of the southern part of Frederick County. Most, like Silver Hill, were served by circuit pastors and were grouped into charges. The Silver Hill Church is located near the Wayman A.M.E. Church to the south of the adjoining cemetery. Wayman was built about 1868 and according to Wayman member Mrs. Gladys Cooper, the Silver Hill Church has traditionally been considered the older of the two churches; however, this is not supported by the available deed references.

Very little recorded history of the African-American rural churches in Frederick County is available, although some may have individual histories compiled for centennials in the 1960's and 1970's. More research on the Silver Hill and Wayman churches is needed to relate to the two buildings and the cemetery and to form an architectural context. The 1858 Bond Map shows a Methodist Episcopal Church at approximately the location of the two churches. It is unknown at this time whether this was the existing Silver Hill Church or a predecessor structure for which a formal deed was not recorded until 1875 after the construction of the Wayman Church when property lines needed to be drawn. The Titus Map of 1873 shows a "colored church" on a rectangular lot at the site, but it is unclear which church is indicated.
